Message From Founder

CA PAYAL SARDA RATHI

Dear Supporters,

Care For You was founded with the very motto of "Spreading Smiles, Miles and Miles," and has left no stone unturned in ensuring the same. Care For You, today stands proud and tall, having come this far on this arduous, yet satisfactory journey of lending a hand to the needful in our society. We have built for ourselves, an enviable reputation. In the past three months, we were able to make our mark in the Metaverse sphere! We have had various, continuous online classes and lectures every day. Education is not only about academics, but a w fe in building character and shaping the personality of every child to grow up as valuable citizens. Our aim is to continue these classes and prepare children to be lifelong achievers, keen learners, progressive thinkers, efficient communicators, and responsible citizens. Empowering the entire youth is one of the biggest necessities in this country.

I am thankful for my team of dedicated workers for doing their best in every form and we hope we can transform the community swiftly!

Challenges and problems are the fuel of success, and breaking barriers and getting over hurdles would not have been possible without my team's effort and ground level execution.

I am also grateful for the support that we have recieved and has made our work possible. We always welcome support offered in any way. No help is big or small. However meager your contribution may be, it will add to the whole to bring light and happiness to ones who are in the clutches of privation.

This is just the beginning. With your aid, Care For You will be able to truly spread smiles for miles!

Thanking you,
CA Payal Sarda Rathi

WEEKLY CLASSES

WEEKLY BOOK READING SESSIONS

Every Saturday, we at Care For You, host online book reading sessions for the orphanage children as well as the society's English speaking children. This reduces the gap of communication between the two sections!

These sessions involve two types of narrations; one story is narrated through visually exciting presentations, and the other is explained via an entertaining video.

VOCABULARY SESSION

Vocabulary is a backbone of English language. It makes us stand strong, believe in our words and to have a confidence while having a conversation.

Vocabulary session is followed by the book reading session and we teach our children new words every week which they can use in their daily conversations.

DOODLE ART WORKSHOP

We at Care For You have been trying to augment this very desire of these young and innovative children by keeping Doodle Workshops every Wednesday.

These classes are taken by Miss. Anushka Wagaskar, a BBA student from Wadia College.

Anushka Wagaskar - Art teacher -

Doodle is kind of a meditation to me, it makes my vision clear towards different things. It makes me relax and enjoy my solitude.

Last year in October I had an opportunity to spread this joy with WNCD kids at Care for you. Every week I teach them different types of doodle designs and patterns.

Its a therapy around them, you are supposed to be their SOS, but on contrary they help you smile and feel loved 😊

REWARDS AND RECOGNITION

OUR FAMOUS BLOGS

THE DAY THAT CHANGED THE WAY I PERCEIVED LOVE

15th August was a day my family and I celebrated a lot more than just seventy-two years of our country's independence.

Being brought up in a more westernized household, my family never really exacted their beliefs on my sister and me. Yes, we were introduced to the practices and ways of praying but were never forced into anything.

Thus, we both grew up to be girls who didn't understand God as an old white-bearded man sitting in the clouds who was the divine force that made the world go around but more as an integral part of our soul that could not only help us differentiate between the right and wrong, but also provided us with the inner strength to battle through life.

This was the same reason we didn't believe in celebrating a lot of festivals with old beliefs and traditions, and this regular and consistent habit of ours changed the way I perceived and interpreted the very meaning of love.

On the day of Rakshabandhan, my sister and I started our twenty-minute drive to Snehalaya, a shelter home in the mainland of Ahmednagar. We went with our ever-enthusiastic granddad (he is the true meaning of a philanthropist.)

When we drove into their sprawling ground amidst the open-space brick-walled offices, I realized the immense hard work that Mr. Girish Kulkarni had put into developing this Home and the passionate drive he had for what he did. My sister and I stood in awe of the beauty and vastness of this place until realizing my grandfather was already way ahead of us (nothing stopped him or slowed him down whenever he decided to go to Snehalaya.)

We followed him to a domed hall where we were welcomed with a burst of liveliness and spirit.

OUR FAMOUS BLOGS

The children there were celebrating Independence Day and Rakshabandhan. Their enthusiasm and zest was transferred to everyone their little hands touched, it was difficult to think about anything else amidst them. Like George Shaw says, "A happy family is but an earlier heaven." They too were one happy family- an array of children of all kinds of religion, creed, color, sex, and from various walks of life.

We watched as they played with each other forgetting their pasts and not worrying about their future, just lost in the pleasant present the Snehalaya team had created for them. They truly had created a Home of Love for them, a 'Sneh-Alaya.'

Later in the day, we watched them tie rakhis to each other, symbolizing the commitment, warmth, and love between this unusual yet one big family.

I'm sure at such a young age, they didn't know the true meaning behind tying a rakhi, but the affection they had was mutual and transparent; it could be seen in their simple and innocent smiles. Watching them, at that moment, I was content; nothing could go wrong.

Soon, it was time to go back home.

We bid a happy farewell to everyone and drove off. As the sun disappeared behind the hills, I realized they had taught me a life lesson of contentment and the true meaning of love. I realized the significance of the age old tradition of a brother protecting his sister had a deeper meaning and went beyond this one single relationship. It was a sacred bond that could be celebrated and shared between anyone.

You could be a rakshak of your friend, your brother, your sister, your pet; you could even be your own rakshak. I slowly rested my head on the window glass, reminiscing the beautiful day I had. I closed my eyes and dreamed of the same. Snehalaya made an indelible impression on my mind. We watched as the fog slowly covered what is known as The Home of Love.

LET US ACHIEVE SUSTAINABILITY IN EDUCATION AND LIFE

Everything changes in life like this year is also changed to a new year. Life itself is filled with vivid changes and this change is permanent. Life is that it is changeable from the moment child is born there are changes in physical, moral mental and there are changes in situations and the situations can be changed or stabilized if knowledge can be acquired through various sources.

Education is the prime source of knowledge but we need to think that whether really education cater to our needs? are we really contented with the patterns of education? do we have sustainable education to make our living worth on the planet our future depends on the present sustainability as per UNESCO "Education for sustainable development allows everyone being to acquire skills attitudes and values necessary to shape a sustainable future".

Sustainable education is approach to education as an attempt to, "shift consciousness towards an ethics of life giving relationship that respect the interconnectedness of man to natural world".

There are different subjects in all types of schools with different curriculum every book has various topics which we discuss and study but are they really considered as topics which help in sustaining development of life? we really need to give practical approach and all educators, students, management and parent or Guardian must be aware of it.

Basically sustainable education requires participatory teaching and learning method that motivate and empower learners to change their behaviour and take action for sustainable development. It consequently promotes competencies like critical thinking, imagining future scenarios like cause and effect trial and error methods what about what will happen in future. And making decisions in collaborative way to enhance decision making and teamwork qualities went in different fields sustainable education is desirable at levels of formal education and training as well as non formal and informal training.

it covers three dimensions of life as environmental, economic and social sustainability sustainable education requires shift towards active participated and social learning methods that engage learner and make real difference to their understanding, thinking and ability to act. There are different methods or pedagogies to create sustainable educational environment such as *Having reflection with the help of new approaches, reflex accounts for better insight and self betterment, learning journals and discussion in groups.

Having systemic analysis through use of real-world case studies and Critical incidents (fire safety drills earthquake or flood situation drills, act on situations like loss of something or money or marks) not giving up the life in any situation. To enhance stimulus activities which will enhance the interest to make their minds open to different fields and so that they can recognise their future career field. Motivate participatory learning with emphasis on group or Peer learning , developing dialogue so as to remove the shyness and express your opinion correctly and clearly. Experiential learning with the help of nature action research or learning to act (in different kind of situations). Developing case studies with local community group and business(exposed to different fields and so that they can recognise their future career by their own and nothing seems burden on them for future).

Thinking creatively for future scenario as by using role play as it is rightly said,"One can understand situation only if one goes through it ." it should include real world enquiry, problem based learning along with space and energy knowledge. Collaboration learning including contribution from guest speaker (experience is the best teacher).

Work based learning interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary. If this education become sustainable we will learn to sustain our lives more wisely and beautifully as everything at new state seems beautiful but we need to sustain values, culture, skills and improvise innovative ideas which is difficult but not impossible. So, with the start of new year let's resolve for better things and have sustainability.

TESTIMONIALS

My journey with 'Care For You Foundation' was short but incredible. I took dance classes for small groups of kids, especially Girls. They were all so sweet and were very eager to learn as well. The importance of physical activity can't be denied and during these pandemic times, with everyone sitting at home, it became all the more important to do something physical. Therefore, these online dance sessions came as a rescue. It was indeed fun!!

The kids and I together had a really great time while dancing. With them, even I got the chance to dance my heart out and relax and enjoy myself. These sessions will always have a special place in my heart

I will forever remain grateful to Care For You for giving me this opportunity. ☺

MANIKA KHANDELWAL
